

THE NATIONAL MUSEUM OF BEIRUT

This building shelters the National Museum of Beirut of Neo-Egyptian style, built in 1930 and opened in 1939 , as well as a colonnade erected in front of the entrance being actually restored. The national collection of the museum has been scattered everywhere in the world during the war. Today the officials are about to regroup again these treasures at the national museum. For the moment private visits may be arranged for small groups.
